THE ADOPTED CIVIL SERVICE REFORM. The Pendleton civil service bill which passed the senate on the 27th of December, was rushed through the house of representatives last Thursday without debate and without amendment. It is one of the most important bills that has been by congress since the Bland silver bill became a law. It provides a new system of official appointments and tenure, for which there has been such a clamor for many years. The bill, in brief, provides for the appointment by the president, with the concurrence of the senate, of three commissioners who shall constitute the United States civil service commission. Each commissioner shall receive a salary of $3,500 a year and necessary traveling expenses. The president is authorized to appoint a secretary for the commission, at a salary of $1,000; and the commission may employ a stenographer and messenger when needed. The commission is to prepare rules for open, competitive exammations for testing the fitness of applicants for the public service now classified or to be classified herefater. Such examinations shall be practical in their character, and, so far as may be, shall relate to those matters which will fairly test the relative capacity and fitness of the persons examined to discharge the duties of that service into which they

No person shall receive an absolute appointment until he shall have been tried, and if found competent and worthy, he shall be promoted. No person in the public service shall be required to contribute to any political fund, and if he rofuses he cannot be removed for so doing. The commission shall, at Washington and in one or more places in each state and territory, where examinations are to take place, designate and select a suitable number of persons, not less than three, in the official service of the United States, residing in such state or territory, after consulting said department or office in which said persons serve, to be members of boards of examiners, and may at any ti no substitute any other person in said service living in such territory in place of any one so selected. Such board of examiners shall be so located as to make it reasonably convenient and inexpensive for applicants to attend before them; and where there are persons to be examined in any state or territory examinations shall be held therein at least twice in each year.

seek to be appointed.

The bill further provides that no person habitually using intoxicating liquors to excess shall be appointed or retained in any office, business, or employment to which the provisions of the bill are applicable. It prohibits any officer of the government or member of congress from soliciting or receiving money or any other contribution for any political purpose whatsoever, and provides a penalty of a fine not exceeding $5,000, or imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years, or both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court, for the violation of the provisions of the bill. This is, in substance, the Pendleton scheme for reforming the civil service. Time will soon tell whether it will be practical or not.)

A majority of the republicans of the Michigan legislature have nominated Thomas W. Ferry, for United States senutor. There were twenty-five republicans who would not attend the caucus, and if these persist in opposing Ferry, they may elect a democrat. The bolting republicans of Michigan in 1875, did something that cost their state a good deal in reputation, when they defeated that grand old character, Zach Chandler, and elected in his stead, that crawling sycophant, Isaac P. Christianey. That fatal political mistake should not be repeated. Ferry has make a good senator, and the people would do themselves honor to pay no sort of attention to Jay Hubbell.

There were forty-five votes in the house of representatives against the civil service bill. Forty two of these were democratic. The Gazette does not wish to make any cavidious comparison or the purpose of hurting the feelings of democrats but they have clamored so much for reform, the above item will not fail to be inter_ esting to the general reader.

Ban Butler were a dress coat and a pair of white kids when he was mangurated governor of Massachusetts. But nature made it impossible for Governor Butler to dress up his countenance. A swallow-tail and kids cau't change that.

Ohio is also engaged in the work of reform. The legislature of that state has passed a bill permitting wives to testify against their husbands in criminal cases. and husbands against their wives.

It was reserved for Miss M. C. Thomas, of Baltimore, Maryland, to win the degree of doctor of philosophy, at the university of Zurich, Germany, the highest honor ever granted by that university.

The best thing Milwankee has done for some time was to give Herr Most an exceedingly cold reception. The Germans showed good sense in not toadying to this incendiary mounte-bank.

Reform is marching onward in Washington. There is to be no more smoking in the departments of state and war hereafter during business hours.

Sudden Disappearance of the Battle-Scarred State Treasurer of Tennessee.

A Deficit of $400,000 in His Office Reported by an Investigating Committee.

The Missing Funds Believed to Have Been Squandered in Speculation.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 6 .- Intense excitement is prevailing here over a reported deficit of $400,000 in the office of the state treasurer. Several days ago resolutions were adopted by the Tennesseo logislature to examine the accounts of the treasurer and comptroller, and yesterday the committee went to the treasuror's office, but were informed by his clerk that he had not been in his office for two days and did not know when he would return. The committee reported this fact to the two houses, and it caused a general sensation. The following is the report of the legislative committee:

"The joint select committee to settle with the comptroller and treasurer report that they have visited the office of the treasurer, and upon inquiry find the freasurer away from the capital and has been for two days, and they are not advised when he will return. His circk states that he cannot go into a sottlement of the freasurer's account (if) his return. They also have information from the bondsmen, or some of them, that the condition of the treasure is such that they feel justified to recommend that the workings of the treasury be stopped and an investigation can be had."

The some adopted the following joint resolution:

"Whereas, The senate has reason to believe that M. T. Polk, the present treasurer, is a defaulter for about $400,000; and "Whereas, The bend given by said officer is not sufficient in amount to secure the said de-not sufficient in amount to secure the said deficit; therefore be it

"Resolved, by the senate and house of representatives. That the atterney general of the state be and is hereby instructed to attach instanter all available assets belonging to said M. T. Polk, provided that sufficient grounds exist, to the end that the same may be held for satisfaction of said deficit."

The committee went to work after the adjunction of the general assembly and journment of the general assembly and counted the amount of currency now is the treasury wault, and found between $5,000 and $6,000. The treasurer reported to the legislasugar. The treasurer reported to the registation last April that he had money deposited in twenty-four banks in this state, and a resolution was adopted yesterday directing these banks not to pay any check signed by Treasurer Polk. The banks have been telegraphed as to what amount of state funds, if any, they have on deposit, and will be heard from, perhaps, to-day. It is rainored here that the treasurer has gone to Mexico, where a nephew of his owns a silver mine. His clerk received a letter from him Thursday, at Milan, wast Tennessee, and it is now thought he has gone to Holivar, Hardeman county, this state. Telegrams have been sent to various points and it is thought he will be heard from to-day. It is also said that he left here Wednesday night in company with his nephew and the latter's Mexican body-servant. Col. Polk's bond was only $10,000 each.

Col. Polk's bond was only $10,000 and he has ten bondsmen who stand surery for $10,000 each.

Col. Marsh T. Polk has been state treasurer for six years, and is the secon of a noble and representative family. He is a nephew and an adopted son of ex-Prosident Polk, and is the heir-apparent of the Polk mansion, a very valuable piece of property that Tresident Polk nearlight in his will should go to the ture last April that he had money deposited in the legislature should select. He was born in Morgantown, N. C., on the 15th of May, 1831, and was educated at Georgetown, D. C., when a youth. He graduated at West Point in 1852, and corved four years on the frontier. Ho married, on the 6th or 19th of January, 1835, Miss Evaline Bills, daughter of Mejor John H. Bills, a prominent citizen of Folfvar. He was captain of artillery in the Confederate army upder Gen. Polf, and was wounded at the battle of Shiloh, captured, and carried to Evansville, whore his log was amputated twice. Through the influence of Mrs. President Polk, he was brought here and turean. After he was exchanged he was made liculumant colonel of arilliery, and wont on Gen. Polk's star. On the 19th of December, 1882, there was a balance of over $500,000, and on April 18, the same yone, there was a balance of nearly $600,000. It is generally believed that he lost the money specflating in bonds and railroad stocks. plating in bonds and railroad stocks.

THE INTELLIGENCE IN NEW YORK.

New York, Jan. 6.—The news of the defalaction by the slate treasurer of Tennessee was received in this city through private dis patches from Nashville late yesterday afternoon. It was known to very few persons The announceament caused great surprise, for Mr. Polk was well known to some of the large bendholders, all of whom spoke of him in high terms.

Mr. Tolk was well known to some of the large bondholders, all of whom spoke of him in high terms.

Eugene Kelly, chairman of the bondholders' committee, exclaimed: "It is impossible. I cannot believe it. He may have lost a small gum of money, perhaps, for I know he had great faith in the new bonds, and it is possible that he may have become embarrassed by the recent decline in the price."

Other bondholders expressed similar surprise, but not all the same dank. A broker who had been largely morested in Tennesses bonds said: "I do not know that I am surprised at this. A little incident that happened last summer will perhaps explain the reason. When the state officers were here I took to them a considerable amount of bonds for exchange. I wouldn't even trust a clock to do it. When I presented my bonds only one of state officers was present, and, right before my eyes, he signed that onlicers winose signatures were necessary. I objected, of course to this wholesale forgery, and the efficer was sonable carefolness. I had my bonds proposite signed but I made up my mind then that rather means and by white the terms and the corresponding carefulness. I had my bonds properly signed, but I unde up my mind then that I wanted no more Tennessee in mino. This cort of thing may be the proper thing in that state, but it is hardly suited to this fatitude."

The Week's Failures.

New York, Jan. 6.-The failures of the past seven days reported to R. G. Dun & Co. number 324, distributed as follows: Eastern states 24, western 72, middle 08, southern 42, Cacific 15, New York city 17, Canada 16. Compared with last week this shows an increase of 31, but the number is doubtless swel-

by numerous small assignments made at the close or the year, though the parties had virtually failed long before. The prominent New York assignments are: N. H. Dudley & Co., canned goods; J. J. Brower & Son, hardware, and Brower & Leeds, hardware. In the country, Francis Carvill & Son, of Halitax, N. S., and Carvill, McKean & Co., of S., John, N. B., stopped in consequence of the failure of the parent concern in England. The other failures in the country were not prominent, although a considerable number of fair-sized houses succumbed.

"LUCKY'S" BAD LUCK. Further Details of the Shooting of La Lucky " Baldwin. An Entertaining Sketch of the Very

Remarkable Career of the San Fhancisco, Jan. 6.-Further details of the shooting of Mr. Baldwin, the milliomire, at his hotel are given. At the time of the shooting Mr. Baldwin had just left his room with his nince, Mrs. Carroll, and was on his way to the hotel, where he had an appointment with Mr. Carroll. As they walked along the hall they passed Miss Baidwin, who appeared to be going up the corridor, but in reality she turned, and whom they got about six feet from her they heard the click of a pistol. Mrs. Carroll turned and saw Miss Baldwin with her aria extended, but not in time to give an alarm. After the shot Mrs. Carroll fainted, and Baldwin run along the corridor, pursued by the woman, who, owing to the fact that the ham mer of the pistol was caught, was not able to mer of the pistol was caught, was not able to five another shot. Baldwin ran into another room with a gentleman who had rushed out on hearing the shooting, rapidly followed by his assailant, and it required the united efforts of both to preven her from entering. In fact, she once had the door open a few inches hefore it could be seenrely locked. She acted like actigness. By this time an officer arrived on the scene, but it required every effort to arrest hor, as she was very violent. She had placed the pistol again in her pocket, but tried to draw it. Fortunately, it caught in her dross, and before she could extricate it it was taken from her, and she was in the cludless of the law. She went quictly down to the city prise; Baldwin, after the arrest of the wones. law. She went quietly down to the city prise; Batdwin, after the arrest of the wonar, bandaged his arm with a towel and waited icto his room, where he was attended by brSawyer and two other physicians. Mr. Lloyd, his attorney, also called on him, and remained with him the greater part of the day. In conversation with an officer he stated the woman had been persecuting him for some time, enleavening to obtain money, estensibly for the purpose of insuring her life. This morning she approached him again, and on his refusanulled a pistol from her pocket and fired at him. After the first shot the hammer caught and refused to work, which probably saved Luckey's life, as the woman meant to kill him.

Upon being conveyed to the city prison, Miss Baldwin was placed in one of the new colls, and a charge of assault with intent to murder booked against her. She says that she is a consin of Baldwin's, and relains to have made his acquaintance about three years age, and flut after repeated attempts he succeeded in ruining her. He then sont her to Santa Anita, where she was employed as a school teacher. The story of her fatt followed her, hovever, and she roturned to this city, where she has been for the last three weaks. After making manefrans cails on Baldwin to endeaver to induce him to right her she at last determined to take his life. The weapon used was a small Coll's tive-shooter, the cautildees setting well back in the chamber, and evidently containing but little powder.

Mr. Baldwin carned his nickname "Lucky" from the manner in which he acquired his great wealth. Twenty years ago he was an honest miner, delying into the howels of the Constock for his daily bread. He, with a party of friends, staked out a claim and settled down on it with nothing to speak of but faith in work on. Nobody considered the claim worth a necond thought, but Baldwin kept on sinking his shaft, and woke up one moneing with millions in sight. Then the miners called him "Lucky" Baldwin. He has had a remarkable career. Coing to San Trancisco, he associated himself with such not as Senator Sharon, Rabson of the California bank. Flood & O'Brien of the Novada back, and latter known as the Bonanza king, Lathum and others. Being segacous, and above all "hucky," he soon made for himself a name having plenty of funds at commond on California bank. Being segacous, and above all "hucky," he soon made for himself a name having plenty of funds at conamond on California bank, plood as those of Keene's in later years, and it was not long before he was at dager's poin hotel and opera house, the finest hotel west of the Mississippi, although much smaller than the Palace.

Tom Magnire, the veteran California manager, has advays managed the opera house, although baldwin his sould vast sums in keeping it up. He put up petroleum gas-works for the exclusive use of his hotel and theatre. It blew up and killed one or two and wounder others. He built if again. It took him months to get the permit from the authorisies, and he built if in the farm of the protests of the entire population. It was at this hotel that Mr. Tahlwin med and married his second wife, a beautiful woman, who fixed two years only. "Larky" Baldwin's career since life acquisition of wealth has been as checkered and eventful as in the forty-nines. His daughter, a lovely girl, ten away from her first husband, Sueder, and he procured a divorce from her. She subsequently married Hold Dable, the noted horse-trainer, but she did not upon her ways, and Balde soparated from her. Shot after his high later was completed baldwin was sued by a young woman, Vinnic McCarnick, whom he had an doyed to sow on tapastries, for $40,000 for breach of promise and scantoin.

THE TELEGRAPH WAR.

THE TELEGRAPH WAR.

The Rival Companies in Conflict on the Floor of Congress,

Washington, Jan. 6 - A very lively contest will soon be commenced in the rooms of the house committee on judiciary, the immediate cause being a bill to punish any telegraph company that shall neglect or refuse to transmit messages that may come to such mit messages that may cone to such company over the times of a rival company. The bill is now in the hands of a sub-committee, consisting of Mosses. Payson, Humphrey and Townshend, and a meeting of the committee will be held in a few days. A powerful lobby is here to protect the respective interests of the Mutual Union and Wostern Union companies. The policy of the latter company in refusing to receive messages from the Matual Union has been the cause of much compilaint, especially in the northwest, and has led to the introduction of a bill which will bring the Western Union to time.

THREE LARGE MILLS BURNED.

A Loss of Over Half a Million Dol-

Conous, N. Y., Jan. 6.—Morrison, Colwell & Page's rolling mill, O'Brien & Powers' knitting mills and the Patrick Gugerty Pilot mills were totally destroyed by fire yesterday morning. The fire originated in the wheel-pit of the rolling will. The engineer began thawing ont by the usual process, a wheel which had frozen in the pit the night provious, when by some accident the oil caught fire and the flames : spread with the most wonderful rapidity. The firemen did splendid work and successfully diverted the fire from the central portion of the city, which includes the great; kutting manufactories. Inside of one hour from the time it took fire in the wheel-pit, the entire works had been consumed, and nothing was left but the furnaces and their chinneys. The worse has been trained, and their chimneys. The flames drove the working a way so quickly that they had no time to think of drawing the furnaces, hence the loss is much greater than otherwise would have been, as the iron will now have to cool in them, and they will then have to be taken apart.

The flames were driven to the Pilot mills of P. Gegerly, where the fire can rich through the sily and combustible material, and communicated from one story to another with great rapidity. Within five minutes this furnamental brick structure were utterly helpless to stay their progress. Soon the gracine tank exploded, reading and leveling the walks.

The total loss on the rolling mill is estimated at $500,000. The insurance is about $75,000.

The loss on Gugerty's mills is $100,000; in-$75,000. The loss on Gugerty's raills is $100,000; insurance, $75,000.

Powers & O'Brien's mill occupied a per tion of the Pilot mills building, and is involved in the general ruin. Loss, $30,000; partially insured.

THE RAILROADS.

Indications of Large Gains in the Traffic Returns. New York, Jan. 6.—There are reasons for believing that the traffic returns of the majority of the railroads will show large gains this year. It these reports are honestly made, and not manipulated to promote speculation, investors will have a good basis upon which to estimate the value of share property in which they may be interested. The southwestern roads are crowded with freight, and it is probable they will have all they can do for the remainder of the winter moving grain, cotton and cattle to the chief distributing points. This will result in largely increased carnings until well into the spring. The grain-carriers in the northwest and those ranning through the corn bolt have reased to expect largely increased carnings compared with the early part of last year. Grain moves with only moderate freedom, and they are so situated as to be practically beyond the reach of competition from water courses, so that the grain that is moved must be carried on these roads. The trank lines in the pool are now getting full rates for east and west bound brainess, and they will have the built of the tradio until ravigation opens in the spring, so the carnings of these roads should show large gains upon the totals of the same time last year. it is probable they will have all they can do

UNHAPPY LOUISE. Her Life is Made Wrotched by the Scheming of a Woman With a Wart on Her Cheek.

The Premier's Wife is a Biger Woman, in Canada than the Queen's Daughter.

New York, Jan. 6.-A Canadian correspondont writes to Tho Times: Princess Louise refuses to remain in Ottawa, because of repugnance which she entertains toward Lady Me-Donald, wife of Sir John A. McDonald, premier of the dominion. The result of the general election in June last was extremely disappointing to her royal highness, who hoped that Sir John McDonald's government might be defeated, and Lady Me-Donald's domination over society circles thus brought to an end. The marquis of Lorne and the Princess Louise arrived in Canada in : November, 1878. Sir John A. McDonald had then just been returned to power by an overwhelming majority. He and his friends had been for five long years in opposition, and woro disposed to exercise their newly gained power to the ar-most degree. Sir John's government is one of almost personal rule. His will is law in all party conneils, as well as at the executive He selects for his colleagues usually men of plinble nature, who are never great sticklets for matters of principle, and these he rules absolutely. He feels that without him his party could not exist an hour, and his followers are under greater obligations to him than he is to those than he is to them.

Lady MacDonald, who has been cruelly de-andy MacDonald, who has been cruelly described as "a large, mascaline-looking woman, with a wart on her cheek," partakes largely of her husband's feelings and ambitions, and sooks to rule in society as Sir John dock in rolling. When the second seems of the second se or husband's feelings and ambitions, and sooks to rule in society as Sir John does in polities. When the princess was installed as mistress of Rideau hall, it soon became evident that Lady MacDonahl was auxious to "manage" her. She sought to monopolize more than an ordinary share of the princess' attentions, and endeavored to thenst her personally into everything connected with Rideau hall affairs. It is even stated that she went so far as to advise the princess in the matter of selecting her personal friends. Lady Macdonald, however, was not to be so easily beaten upon her own ground, and on all occasions took eare in appear more prominently, if possible, than the princess herself. Having plenny of patronage at her disposal, she easily kept on hand a relinue of atheirers and latterers. She was destined, however, soon to receive a severe snubbing. One evening, when her royal highness was 'at home,' Lady Macdonald appeared on the seene with her usual boyy of personal friends. There were not many others present, but among these was a protty French Canadian lady, the wife of a senator. To this lady the Princess Lonise was particularly attentive. Canadian lady, the wife of a senator. To this lady the Princess Lonise was particularly attentive. Entering into conversation with her in French, she soon grew interested, for the sonator's wife, besides being young and comely, was well educated and had traveled in Europe. Noither Lady Macdonald nor any of ther friends understood a word of French, and it is easy to imagine how humilated they felt as the conversation proceeded; tinally they took their departure in high dudgeon. The "coolness" between her ladyship and the princess had, therefore, culminated in an open rupture, and the former was possessed of sufficient power to make maters often exceedingly unpleasant for the princess.

Thus matters continued during the winter and summer of 1879. Disagreeable gossip regarding the relations between the marquis and the princess, which soon pervaded all the Canadian cities, were thought to emanate from Stadaeoua hall, the premier's seat. The princess was obliged to take part in public balls and diamers, and to mingle with people neither the most accomplished nor the best behaved. Some of the scenes emanted at Rideau hall toward the closing hours of some "grand balls" have become historie. The champagne furnished by the Canadian government is never of the best quality, and the princess would often be led down to diamer by some instruments of some whose conversation would not be always of the most entermining description. Lady Macdonald's ambition is not yet satisfied. Having driven the princess out of the field, she aspires to become mistress of Rideau hall herself, and with that end in view has, through her agonts, started an aritation in favor of her lusband's appointment to the governor generals in. Several Canadian pressures to co-Thus matters continued during the winter Insbind's appointment to the governor generality. Several Canadian newspapers have been induced to publish articles in support of Sir John's candidature, and it is believed that the agitation which is now being openly conducted in his favor is not without his consent. No Business of Importance Transsoted in Either House-The Senatorial Situation.

Springfield, Jan. 6 -- Yesterday was a very dull day in both houses, so far as the general public is concorned. At II (50 a. m., tho sonato members headed by the lieutenant governor, proceeded to the house chamber, where in joint session the vote on state officers was canvassed, and the official count was declared

There is little new to notice in the senatorial contest. Gon. Raum's friends express confidence in their candidate's staying proporties, and claim that he will be a winner on the third or fourth ballet. Just how this result will be accomplished remains to be seen. Oglosby's followers are just as cheerful, and the Cullom people not to be outdone, londly proclaim their candidate dead sure to come in should.

No vory authentic estimate as to the strength No vory authentic estimate as to the strength of the candidates has as yet been made. A pair of well-informed politicians, not not norther harly champions of any candidates, have at some pains figured the situation as follows: Cullon 40, Raum 28, Rinaker 10, Oglesby 25, Henderson 7. The list has been carefully prepared, and so far as possible the views of each legislator ascertained. gislator ascertained.
The exodus of statesmen began at 1,000 and

The exodus of statesmen began at noon and continued all day and evening, and at midnight few of he legislators were in the city. The adjournment until Monday evening means simply that there will be no business attempted until Thesday. A few senators and a sprinkling of representatives will remain over Sunday. The headquarters of the senatorial candidates are virtually desorted, owing to the lack of legislative meat.

Cullom, Raum, Oglesby, and Henderson have agroed on next Thursday night for the joint sonatorial canons, and, as the wishes of the candidates always determine the time, it may be set down as certain that the long expected set to will come of that evening.

Governor Cultom's message is a very complete document, presenting the condition and wants of the various departments of the state governments fully. The governor recommends a constitutional amendment giving the power of partial veto by items or sections in certain appropriation bills.

The Prohibition Amendment in the Schute.

INDIANA.

Thursday for a service in memory of the late Senator Chapman, of Marion county. The question of the legality of of the adoption of the prohibition amendment by the last legislature was brought up by a resolution of Senator Smith Republican, directing the secretary of state to furnish a certified copy of official records in his office concerning the constitutional amendments adopted in 1881, and also the one in relation to the Wabash and Eric canal, and as to whether the constitutional provision has been complied with requiring such proposed amendments, with the year and navy thereamendments, with the yeas and nays thereon, to be entered on their journals and referred to the next general assembly. A spirited discussion resulted, the Republicans favoring it, but the Democratic majority finally referred the matter to the judiciary committee. The latter will send in as its report attraction prepared by leading attorneys employed by the Democratic state central committee, which holds that the amendments were never legally adopted. And therefore if initiae, which holds that the amendments were never legally adopted, and theorefore it they came before the present legistature it must be as entirely new matter. This report will doubtless be adopted by both houses by a strict party vote, and the temperance people will be compelled to draw up new amendments and wait four years for their submission. The senate refused to appoint a submission. The senate refused to appoint a special committee on the subject of woman suffrage. The house, after the consideration of unimportant partiers, adjourned until Mooday. At 11 o'clock both houses met in joint session, Lieut. Gov. Hanna presiding, and Gov. Porter delivered his message.

The Democratic semitors arranged the conmittees in cancus last night. Bell of Allen, is to be chairman of judiciary, Brown of Jackson, of fees and salaries, and railroads, McChire of Chark, of me lical legislation, Halligoes of Huntington, of benevolent institutions, Mague of Cass, of finance, and Johnson of Dearborn, of education. It is understood that Charles L Jewett of Secut, is to be chairman of the house committee on ways and means. of the house committee on ways and means.

WISCONSIN.

The Status of the Legislators From the Milwaukee District.

MILWAUREE, Jan. 6. - The Milwankee members of the legislature will all go to Madison on Monday. Of the twelve members of the assembly from this county eight are Democrats and one (Walsh) is trades-assumbly with Democratic autoredents; he will probably go into the Democratic cancus. The Hon, M. J. Egan, one of the Milwankee members, is a candidate for speaker wantee members, is a canonate for speaker of the assembly, but a combination was formed in the delegation to defeat him, and a motion was informally adopted to cast the vote of Milwankeo as a unit for Earle P. Finch, of Osakosh, for speaker. A part of the delegation, however, assert that they do not understand this action as binding, and will vote for speaker, and other offices independent stand this action as binding, and will vote for speaker and other offices independent of this action. A motion to support J. K. Ewing, of this city, for chief clerk of the assembly was adopted under similar efraumstances, but it is also not regarded as binding by a portion of the delegation, who will vote for other candidates. Col. E. A. Calkins, of this city, is a candidate for the chief eleviship of the assembly, and as his experience and knowledge of the duties of the office will be found to be almost indispensable, in view of the fact that a totally inexperienced speaker is likely to be elected, his success is generally predicted. The other candidates for chief clerk are I. T. Carr, of Jefferson, and Junes W. Marphy, of Marquotte, but as the latter comes from the Carr, of Jeffusson, and James W. Murphy, of Marquotte, but as the latter comes from the same congressional district as Finch, the healing candidate for speaker, his show is not promising. It is said that the defection in the Milwankee delegation from Flach for speaker will be cast at first for Egan, and if reinforced from the interior will go in a body either to James A. Taylor, of Chippewa Falls, or R. J. McBride of Neillsville, who are both candidates for the speakership.

NEBRASKA.

The Senatorial Fight Beginning to Grow Hotter.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 6,-The legislature adourned at noon yesterday until Monday. The proceedings in the morning were wholly animportant, consisting of a resolution in relation to the organization of the legislature, the appointment of pages and other officers, and discussions of little meaning and purpose. It is thought that work will common in cornect next week, although there will be little interis unought that work will commence in carnest next week, although there will be little interest matafested in the actual business of the session until after the close of the conatorial convention. The latter is now looked forward to with considerable anxiety by the many candidates for senatorial honors. The Nebraska congressional delegation arrived yesterday and will begin work at once for their particular candidate. Congressional delegation arrived yesterday and will begin work at once for their particular candidates himself, but rather desired to be considered a dark horse. Saunders is working hard and making good headway in renewing old-time friendships. The other senatorial candidates are each doing his best to win the favor of the legislative members. Between Millard, Manderson, Cowen, and Saunders there is little securing difference at present, so far as strength is concerned, but what what the next ten days will bring forth no one can tell. The fight will grow in interest from now on.

A Pleasure Telp.

New York, Jan. 6.-When Simon Cameron, the octogenarian statesman of Pennsylvania, was in this city, a few days ago, he called on his old friend, Mr. Dana, the editor of The Sun, and together they planned an extensive pleasure trip. They will leave here for San Francisco on the 15th of next month, in a special palace-car which they have special palace-car which they have already engaged. Each gentleman will be accompanied by his own cook, and they propose to have a very confortable and enjoyable time. They will probably be away from home about two months. Mr. Dama is still a strong and active man, and Mr. Cameron who is some twenty years the senior of the New York editor, is a marved of physical preservation, or he could not, at his age, undertake this railroad jamat of six or seven thousand miles.

Discussion Over the Admission of WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.-Yesterday morning Mr. Ingalls presented a petition for the admission of Dakota as a state, and remarked that in his opinion the opposition to such admission was wholly partisan and malignant. Mr. Vest denied that the opposition was of well as Democrats, and based upon unanswerable facts. Mr. Garland charged that the first objection on the floor to the admission of Dakota came from Mr. Halo of Maine, on account of the manner in which the county of Yankton had the character stated by Mr. Ingalls, and asserted that it was made by Republicans as dealt with its creditors. Mr. Hale said he had objected to the admission of Dakota on the ground stated by Mr. Carlany, because the repudiation of Yankton county had been sanctioned by the territorial legislature, and he thought it neither fit nor fair that his action should be character-nor fact that his action should be characterized as it had been by Mr. Impults.

A bill was passed making an appropriation for a survey to test the practicability of uniting the upper adjusts of the Missouri and Columbia rivers by a canal.

At 2 o'clock the presidential succession bill came up as unitrished business.

Mr. Carland advocating the bill, said the practical objection to the prosent hybrid was practical objection to the present hybrid sys-tem created by the law of 1752 had been strik-ingly illustrated at the time of President Carriedt's death, and after the 4th of March Garical a death, and after the 4th of March next, unless congress should be dislate upon the subject meanthine, the fire of the president would be the only one standing between as and anarchy. On the order hand one of the advantages of the system proposed by this bill, was that it devolved the duties of the presidency it such cases upon the searchary of state. No inferior man was ever nominated for that office. Under the existing law the president of the anatte would become in a certain contingency acting president. This provision rendered the character of the administration very uncertain. For instance, when the senate met after the death of President Garichi, the senate met after the death of President Garichi, the senate met after the death of President Garichi, the senate met after the death of President Carrichi, the senate met after the death of President Carrichi, the senate met after the death of President Carrichi, the senate met after the death of President Carrichi, the senate president of the senate, and if he Gardeld, the scator from Delaware (Bayard) was chosen president of the scaar, and if he had become president of the United States the chief executive office would have been filled by a member of a party defeated at the polls. But, as if by magle, Mr. Bayard was deposed, and the senator from Himois (Bayas) was put in his place—a distinguished senator, belonging to no party, but walking in an atmosphere of his own above all partics—excultent, ethereal, or what not! [Laughter.] If he had been called to the presidency by the death of President Arthur, what vendict of the people would have approved him or his party? Mr. Carland, in the course of his remarks, expressed the apinion that the president's term of office ought to be six years.

ix years. Mr. Morgan moved to amend to provide that the officer succeeding to the acting presidency shall hold office until the president's disability is removed, or until the vacancy is otherwise lawfully filled, instead of until the regular term, as provided in the fall. Mr. Edinunds moved that the bill recom-mitted to the committee on judiciary with in-structions to report as soon as may be a bill to further provide for and regulate distinct president of the United States by the present of the senate proton, and the speaker of the house of representatives respectively, in case of vacancy in both the offices of president and vice-president of the United States, and for the administration of the United States and for the administration of the United States in cases in which there shall be, at the time being neither president of the second states in cases in which there shall be, at the time being, neither president of the semate proton, nor speaker of the house of repre-sentatives. Mr. Edmands said this motion presented clearly the alternatives of either perfecting the system devised by the fathers performing outlierly from that system, as proposed in the pending bill.

Mr. Blair offered an amendment providing that the cabinet officers maned (in succession), instead of acting as president in the cases contemplated in the bill, shall so act only until templated in the bill, shall so act only until congress can come together and provide by law for filling the presidency.

Mr. Jones, of Florida, ordered an amend-ment providing that no cabinet officer shall succeed to the acting presidency who would not be eligible for election as president.

Without acting upon these amendments the senate went into excentive session, and soon afterwards adjourned.

HOUSE.

Mr. Ford of Missouri, rising to a question of privilege, characterized as imqualifiedly by talse, the dispatch of The St. Louis Globe-bennerat speaking of him has a grank, and charging him with obstructing business.

Mr. Bandall said he was unavoidably absent from the house vesticals. from the house yesterday, but had he been present would have voted for the passage of the civil-service bill.

Mr. Singleton of Illinois did not hear his the bill.

The house then (in committee of the whole) The noise their (in committee of the whole) took up the District of Columbia appropriation bill. It appropriates $3,443,847, being $81,642 less than the estimates. The bill is substantially the same as the present law.

During the discussion relative to the appropriation for lighting the District of Columbia, Mr. Klotz of Pennsylvania, charged that the Washington Caslicht contains on tedled. Washington Caslight company controlled congress, and that the company had a man in the employ of the house, who kept them informed of the introduction of measures affecting gas interests.

Mr. Hiscock said if he (Klotz) made a charge against any member of the house, he should bring in a resolution of inquiry. After some discussion the amendment of Mr. Klotz, making an appropriation of $22 per lamb, was adopted. lamp, was adopted.

An amendment was also adopted having it with the discretion of the district commissioner to substitute other filaminating material for gas in lighting the district.

The bill then passed.

THE SKELETON'S WIFE

The True Love that Led to the Marriage of Beauty No. 71 and the Living Skeleton.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 -- When Isaac W. Sprague the living skeleton at Bunnell's museum, was question of female beauty, He would have made a different decision and have, awarded the first prize to 71, Miss Minnie Thompson. Miss Thompson was, indeed, a very prepossessing young woman, and with a was piqued at not receiving the $100, or even the $50 that was given to the beauty that carried off the second prize. But the skeleton smiled upon her as soon as he had dried his tears, and she was consoled. Not that the sheleton is the highest type of menly beauty, . His arms are bones, hardly concealed by the skin that covers them, and his legs seem al-most too thin to carry even his attenuated form. But his face has a frank and independform. But his face has a frankand independent expression, and though upon a man of ordinary proportions it might show a somewhat unbecoming prominence of check and chin bones, as compared with the culline of his frail body, it appears to be positively fat. It is head is surmonated with a fine shock of brick-colored hair, and a goatee and monstache of the same hue adorn his countenance. Miss Thompson was attracted to him at once, she said she did not like fat men, and looked upon the Hon. William M. Evarts as the beau ideal of grace. At least she so considered him until she was sought by the skeleton, who, to her thinking, ectipsed the lawyer. Miss Thompson is not herself a thin lady. She weights, probably, four times as much as the skeleton, but as he only turns the scale at forty pounds, it will be seen that she is not abnorweights, probably, four times as much as the skeleton, but as he only turns the scale at forty pounds, it will be seen that she is not abnormally large. She may be called plump, and she is very pretty. She is perhaps 10 years of age—five years the skeleton's junior.

After the New York exhibition was over, the skeleton and Miss Thompson met often by appointment at the museum, and the managers of the show complained that the skeleton was feeding upon his affections and growing fat. This must have been a mistake, however, for his weight, as he showed by getting on the scales, had not increased. Another and an older error, too, was corrected. It had been currently reported among the curiosities of the show that the skeleton had neither langs, heart, nor liver, and that a steady are could look through him and see an object behind. The existence of respiratory and digestive organs may still be a matter of doubt, but Miss gans may still be a matter of doubt, but Miss gans may still be a matter of doubt, but Miss Thompson indignantly repudiates the removing that he has no heart.

The courtship was quite short. Miss Thompson told her lover in plain prose the history of her simple-life. He gave her a poom of twenty-four verses fully describing his own. This poem he is in the habit of selling for five cents a copy, but he charged nothing at all for her copy, and she, overcome by this hast proof of her skeleton lover's devotion, promised to be his wife. In a fareful moment the skeleton was sent to the Brooklan show. He was in despair. list wife. In a fareful moment the skeleton was sent to the Brooklyn show. He was in despair, but his true love comforted him, and an appointment was made for last Saturday night. At 9 o'chock the skeleton was at the New York museum, where he met. Miss Minnie Thompson; at 10 o'clock they were in Jersey City, and at 11 o'clock they bad been united in marriage by the Rev. M. Gardher. They returned to Brooklyn, and kept the matter a secret until yesterday morning, when the skeleton announced it to Manager Bates. The mwlynade Mrs. Sprague has consented to support her husband on the exhibition platform. She will appear in Brooklyn to-day, sitting beside him, and billed: "The Skeleton's Wife," "I jest the hundred dollars," said the newly-married lady," but I won a husband."

Courban-Bairam has just begun. The Sultan drove down from Yildiz in his state coach, a very handsome affair, ali chocolate color and gold, drawn by four bay horses, with gorgeously apparreled outriders, running footmen and coachfor rheamatism, and all this discomfort man. The dress of these people is a sort arose from what a sharp writer once of Albanian costume-jackets with hanging sleeves of a deep red color, every part of the cloth thickly embroidered with gold. Loose baggy trousers of blue cloth, and riding boots of irreproachable whiteness. In the carriage with Abdul Hamid rode Ghazi Ahmed Pacha, the major domo of the palace, and Dervisch Pacha, who appears to enjoy just now a great deal of the imperial favor. The coach was sent away shortly after the arrival of the Sultan and a magnificent looking white Arab charger was brought up to the door of the mosque, with silk and gold tasselled bridle and saddle cloth a mass of red velvet and gold tracery. The religious ceremony lasted about half an hour, and to the Christian listener outside seemed very much like a High Church performance of some ceremonial of his own religion with its chanting of the prayers. Presently a bugle sounded, the ministers and marshals mounted their chargers, while the naval and military pachas of lower rank and the boys formed in two lines as before. The soldiers stood to their arms and a bustle at the mosque door, where two fine Circussian cavalrymen with their keen cutting "kamas" kept watch and ward, showed that His Majesty was about to appear. As the Sultan mounted the charger, carefully held by some half-dozen grooms, the guard of honor turned a half face, the troops presented arms, the music struck up the Sultan's March and the whole procession moved off at a stately whole procession moved off at a stately pace. The ministers and marshals, their horses curveting and prancing, rode a little ahead, leaving a space between them and the Padishah. The latter, with Ghazi Mouktar at his bridle rein. on the one side, and Osman Pacha on the other, surrounded by aides-de-camp, grooms and the men of his special body guard, moved on with the two lines of pachas and beys, amid the loud shouts of "Padishah chok Pacha!" The soldiers presenting arms and taking up the

The Sultan had a weary look upon his face, as if the thought had struck him of the hollowness of all this show of military strength when Europe was determined to treat him but as a puppet in the arena of politics. Whether owing to the unpromising appearance of the weather, or the callousness with which Turks have grown to regard everything connected with their government, there were fewer spectators present than usual, and I noticed but one petition presented. The man, who looked like an Armenian, had chosen his ground well, and unrolling the sheet as the Sultan passed caught His Majesty's eye; and by a slight inclination of the imperial head an aide-de-camp was sent to receive it. Passing in through the large gates His Majesty dismounted and stood for a few minutes on the marble steps. A card bearing some verses of the Koran was placed in his hand and while he was reading them a magnificent looking sheep was brought upon the scene. The long wool of its full grown fleece was white as the driven snow, its horns richly gilt and a knot of ribbons and artificial flowers had been fastened on the back of the neck. The poor animal, lifted by the attendants, was made to present its throat, and the Sultan taking a small knife from a richly chased salver made the requisite incision. With a graceful temenah (bow) to all present His Majesty passed in, followed

Our Commerce With Havre.

In its commerce with the United States of America, Havre holds the second place, Liverpool being the first. She im-can trade. Certainly the rapid growth of her commerce is a favorable omen for the future, and it is a growth far more rapid than the commerce of her English rival. In 1836 there were entered from foreign ports at Havre 524 ships, with an aggregate measurement of 150,000 tons.

In 1878 the entries were 3,230, with an aggregate of 1,886,100 tons. For how long must Havre progress at that ratio to outstrip every other port of Europe?

More than three hundred thousand bales of American cotton have entered the port in a single year, with a hundred thousand barrels of petroleum, and two million bushels of grain. And, like Oliver Twist, Havre is looking for more.

The demand for our products exceeds the capacity of the port to handle them; when the facilities are multiplied, the irade will grow accordingly.

In spite of her enterprise in many ways, Havre is very conservative in other things, and hesitates at progress.

Notwithstanding her large trade in grain, she does not, at the time I am writing, possess a single grain clevator. Ships are unleaded just as they were

On the contrary, there is considerable sympathy in the Swedish Parliament and among the Swedish people at large with the Liberal movement in Norway, which aims merely at prefetting the Constitution of 1814.

guarantees. "The issues in the campaign which has just been concluded, and which has resulted in such an overwhelming defeat for the Government, are briefly as follows: The Norwegian Storthing passed several years ago a bill giving the Ministers of the Crown seats in Parliament. The King vetoed it twice, but the Storthing passed it once more over his veto. Now, according to the Norwegian Constitution, a bill becomes law without the King's sanction if passed by three successive Storthings. King Oscar, however, who felt these successive defeats as a personal humiliation, set up a novel claim-that in constitutional amendments he possessed an absolute yeto, and he accordingly re-fused to promulgate the new law. Such a thing had never been heard of before in Norway, and it aroused an amount of indignation among the people, which can only be measured by the size of the Liberal vote in the recent elections. Bjornson, who is a man of tremendous eloquonce, gave voice to this universal indignation, and protested in the name of the people against the usurnations of the Government. If he had been the ambitious, but cowardly, demagogue which the London News represents him as being, do you suppose the whole Nation would have risen to indorse his verdiet on the King and to emphasize his condemnation of the Government? I think not. There is not a not ler. more fearless, and more gifted man in Norway than Bjornstjerne B ornson.

It was this way: Jones bought an elbow for the stove, a kind of out bias and shirred affair, decidedly crooked, and with a cruel, wicked eye. It wasn't very large, but it was an awkward thing to carry. Then he stopped at the grocery and got a neat little paper bug of cranberries, and a dozen of eggs lie forget when ordering supplies, also put up in a paper bag; and next he boarded a car for home. There was just one seat left vacant, and no takers; so Jones laid the elbow in that while he paid his fare. Then he forgot the elbow and sat down gracefully, but not on a bed of roses; there was about a dozen acute angles to the elbow, and he got up again and took it in his lap, but as he did so the bottom of the cranberry bag fell out, and the red berries slid in a shining heap to the floor. Everybody sm led, because Jones was totally un conscious of the fact that his feet reposed in a temporary cranberry bog of ing to maintain the e milibrium of the eggs and keep the stove-pipe joint in hand at the same time; but one egg had jarred against it and was now busy in-bricating the paper bag, and as the car-joited along it gently insinuated itself through the paper. Jones felt that a gatastrophe of some sort was imminent and he reached down and slid the cold elbow under the seat. The moment he let go of the thing it began to rock and clatter as if it were possessed, and one woman who had not been watching him creamed out: "That's a runaway com-Then all the other women in the ear jumped up, pulled the bell strap, and screamed: "Save me! save me!" Meanwhile the eggs were slowly escaping, and Jones cream-gray pantaloons were getting the benefit. In the immediate confusion he saw a chance to escape, and beat a basty retreat, leaving the cranberries and eggs in an inglorious heap on the floor, and the stovepipe under the seat of car No. 9. There it clatters yet, and that is why people say that car is hannted; but Jones knows better, only he keeps his own counsel. — Detroit Fost and Tribune.

Advice to Consumptives. On the appearance of the first sympoms, as general debility, loss of appetite, pallor, chilly sensations, followed by night-sweats and cough, prompt measures of relief should be taken. Consumption is scrofulous disease of the lungs; therefore use the great anti-scrofulous or blood-purifier and strength-restorer, Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Superior to cod liver oil as a nutritive, add unsurpassed as a pectoral. For weak lungs, spitting of blood, and kindred affections, it has no equal. Sold by druggists. -George Little, the ad intrum gas man, is always in his glory when he can play an innocent joke on some unsuspecting individual. The latest one was played on a young man from the country the other evening. George and the countryman happened to be passing by the east side engine house just as the large doors were thrown open for the purpose of letting the horse with the hose-cart out for exercise. The countryman, not having seen the operation before, asked George if there was a fire. George answered, "Guess so." "Where?" "I don't know; follow the cart!" Away went the cart; and George, having his lantern ready to dive into some dark corner to look after a gas metre, hurried on in the direction the hose cart was going, the countryman following. George dropped a remark that he was "too near out of wind to keep up with the cart," which at this time was under good speed, and was turning into West Milwaukee street, for a drive to the depot. Country said he guessed he could keep up, and took the trail of the cart in the street and away they went. George says the last glimpse he had of the man he was reaching for the rear of the cart, near the Davis house, but there being a gap of several feet to be closed up, he concluded the fellow was "winded," and the cart pulled away from him. He did not come back to the house, and has not been seen since.
